TOP SECRET — DO NOT OPEN

THE BOX in the LOFT

A mystery unlocked in texts, diaries and thirty-nine-year-old secrets

Starring FLO & DELILAH

an original mystery in the style of the books they love

BEFORE YOU BEGIN

A Note to the Reader

This is not an ordinary story. Nobody is going to tell you what happened.

Instead, you are going to see the evidence — the actual text messages, diary pages, newspaper cuttings and letters, in the order the sisters found them. You will know exactly what Flo and Delilah knew, at exactly the moment they knew it.

Which means you have precisely the same chance they had of solving the mystery first.

Keep your eyes open. Nothing in this box is here by accident.

THE PEOPLE IN THIS STORY

Florence “Flo”, 12

Big sister. Lives with Mum in town. Reads murder mysteries under the duvet with a torch. Motto: evidence first, theories second.

Delilah, 8

Little sister. Lives with Dad by the sea. Afraid of absolutely nothing except broccoli. Finder of the box.

Grandma Rosie, 56

Dad’s mum. In 1987 she was seventeen, and a chambermaid at the Seagull Hotel. She has kept a secret for thirty-nine years.

Margot Frost, then 48

Queen of the seaside murder mystery. Author of eleven famous detective novels. Vanished from Room 9 of the Seagull Hotel on 23rd August 1987.

Gerald Pinch, then 51

Manager of the Seagull Hotel. Smiles with his mouth but never with his eyes.

Bram

Margot Frost’s black cat. Remember the cat. The cat matters.

PART ONE

The Box

DOCUMENT 1 — TEXT MESSAGES

Flo 🔎 & Delilah 🦕
Sunday, 7:52 pm

DELILAH
FLO. FLO FLO FLO ANSWER YOUR PHONE

DELILAH
THIS IS AN EMERGENCY

FLO
Is it an actual emergency or a “the ice cream van played the sad music” emergency

DELILAH
ACTUAL. I went up in Dad’s loft to find my paddling pool

DELILAH
and behind the water tank there was a BOX

DELILAH
an old old old box. all dusty. tied with string

FLO
A box is not an emergency Delilah

DELILAH
it says PRIVATE. DO NOT OPEN. on the lid. in RED PEN

FLO
DO NOT open it. Wait till Saturday when I come to Dad’s. We open it together. Promise me

DELILAH
promise 🤞

FLO
Delilah that is the crossed fingers emoji

Flo 🔎 & Delilah 🦖
Sunday, 8:01 pm

DELILAH
ok so small problem. I already opened it

FLO
DELILAH

DELILAH
I opened it BEFORE I promised so it doesn't count. that's the law

FLO
…what's inside

DELILAH
newspapers. a green diary. letters tied up with string. a photo of a hotel. and piles and piles of typed pages

DELILAH
the typed pages have titles. look

DELILAH
"The Murder at Larkspur Lodge". "Six Murders Before Breakfast". "The Murder on the Last Train Home"

FLO
Delilah.

FLO
You have found a box full of murders.

Exhibit C — the green diary found in the box.

DOCUMENT 1 — CONCLUDED

Flo 🔎 & Delilah 🦕
Sunday, 8:14 pm

FLO
Send me a photo of everything. Lay it out on your carpet like a museum

DELILAH

FLO
Whose box is it? Ask Dad. CASUALLY. Don't say we opened it

DELILAH
asked him. he says the loft stuff is Grandma Rosie's from when she moved to her flat

FLO
R.M. on the lid. Rosie Marsh. It's GRANDMA'S box

DELILAH
grandma has a box full of murders?? 😱 is grandma a murderer

FLO
Grandma cried when a pigeon flew into her window. She is not a murderer

FLO
The typed pages aren't real murders anyway. They look like STORIES. Manuscripts. Like books before they're books

FLO
Read me the newspaper. The oldest one. Slowly

PART TWO

1987

DOCUMENT 2 — NEWSPAPER CUTTING

The Seacliff Gazette

MONDAY 24 AUGUST 1987 PRICE 22p

MYSTERY WRITER VANISHES FROM SEAGULL HOTEL

Queen of the seaside murder mystery missing from Room 9 — cardigan found at Gull Point

Margot Frost, 48, the celebrated crime novelist, has disappeared from the Seagull Hotel, where she had been staying since June to finish her twelfth book. Staff raised the alarm yesterday morning when Miss Frost did not appear for breakfast — something witnesses say had never once happened in eleven weeks.

Her bed had not been slept in. The window of Room 9 stood open. Most puzzling of all, her famous green typewriter — which she carried everywhere and called "the only man I've ever trusted" — was gone, along with every page of the unfinished novel, believed to be titled The Silver Tide.

The Seagull Hotel, photographed last summer. Room 9 is beneath the gable.

A search of the cliffs revealed Miss Frost's grey cardigan folded neatly on the rocks at Gull Point, below which the currents are known to be treacherous. Police say they are "gravely concerned", and that the sea does not often give back what it takes.

Hotel manager Mr Gerald Pinch, 51, described himself as "devastated beyond words". "She was our brightest star," he told the Gazette. "The Seagull was her home. I was her dearest friend on this earth."

The last person known to have seen Miss Frost is a chambermaid, Rosie Marsh, 17, who took the author her cocoa at nine o'clock on Saturday night. Miss Marsh declined to speak to reporters, and was seen leaving the hotel in tears.

Miss Frost's black cat, Bram, who sat on her lap each evening in the residents' lounge, has not been found.

DOCUMENT 3 — TEXT MESSAGES

Flo 🔎 & Delilah 🦕
Sunday, 8:51 pm

FLO
Rosie Marsh. SEVENTEEN. Chambermaid. Last person to see her alive

DELILAH
GRANDMA WAS IN THE NEWSPAPER

FLO
Grandma was the last person to see a famous writer who vanished off a cliff. And she kept a secret box about it for 39 years. In OUR loft do we ask her about it??

DELILAH

FLO
Not yet. Rule one of detectives: evidence first, theories second. Rule two: don't frighten your witness

DELILAH
grandma is not a witness she is a grandma

FLO
She can be both. Is the green diary hers? Read it

DELILAH
it says ROSIE MARSH — PRIVATE on the first page

DELILAH
flo it feels naughty reading grandma's diary

FLO
It is slightly naughty. But she kept it in a box marked DO NOT OPEN, in a loft, for 39 years, labelled with the year the writer vanished. Diaries like that WANT to be read eventually

DELILAH
ok. photographing the pages. some bits are underlined and there's cocoa on one page. or mud. hopefully cocoa

DOCUMENT 4 — THE DIARY OF ROSIE MARSH (1)

Tuesday 30th June, 1987

First week at the Seagull. My feet ache like anything but I don't care, because guess who is staying in Room 9. MARGOT FROST. The actual real Margot Frost. Mum has read every one of her books from the library, twice. I carried her cocoa up tonight and she looked at me over her glasses and said, "You read on your breaks. I've seen you. Which one of mine is your favourite?" and I said the one where the postman did it, and she laughed like a drain and said "Everyone suspects the postman. Nobody suspects the post." I don't know what that means but I wrote it down because it sounds important.

Saturday 11th July, 1987

Margot (she says I must call her Margot, "Miss Frost sounds like a fridge") lets me sit with her when my shift ends. She's teaching me how mysteries work. She says every mystery has three things: a secret, a lie, and a person brave enough to notice the difference. Her cat Bram sat on my lap the whole time. He only likes three people in the world, she says. Her, me, and absolutely nobody else.

Friday 24th July, 1987

Something horrible today. I was polishing the landing and I heard Mr Pinch in Room 9, sort of hissing. He said, "You owe me, Margot. Half that book is mine and you know it." And Margot said, cold as anything, "No, Gerald. You locked me in this hotel with a contract, not a kindness. You'll get what the paper says and not a penny of my pages." Then the door opened and I had to pretend to polish the same spot of banister for about a year.

Sunday 9th August, 1987

Margot asked me strange questions today. Whether I could keep a secret. Whether I thought a person could be two people in one lifetime. Then she said the oddest thing. She said, "Rosie, when you read a mystery, everyone watches the detective. Nobody watches the luggage." And she looked at her big trunk in the corner and winked.

DOCUMENT 4 — THE DIARY OF ROSIE MARSH (2)

Saturday 22nd August, 1987 — very late

I am writing this fast in the linen cupboard because I don't want to forget one single word. Tonight when I brought the cocoa, Margot had the box out on her bed. This box. She put my hand on the lid and said: "Keep this safe and keep it secret. Don't open it, don't burn it, don't give it to anyone — especially not to Gerald Pinch. One day someone in your family will need it. You'll know them because they'll find it all by themselves." Then she said, "Trust the postcards, Rosie." I said what postcards? and she just smiled and gave Bram a whole sardine.

Monday 24th August, 1987

She's gone. Everyone is saying she walked into the sea off Gull Point because her cardigan was on the rocks. The police came. I tried to tell the sergeant that it CAN'T be that, and he patted my head — actually patted it, like I was a spaniel — and said "leave the thinking to us, pet." So I will write my thinking here instead:

ONE. Margot hated swimming. She called the sea "a lot of wet weather with fish in it."

TWO. Her typewriter is gone. A typewriter weighs as much as a Christmas turkey. You do not carry your typewriter off a cliff.

THREE. Bram is gone too. Cats do not walk into the sea. Nobody takes their cat to a drowning.

FOUR. The cardigan was folded NEATLY. Margot never folded anything neatly in her life. Room 9 looked like a jumble sale every single day.

FIVE. Her big trunk went down to the station on Friday with the luggage van. Nobody watches the luggage.

She is not drowned. She has ESCAPED. And I am the only person in the whole world who knows, and I am seventeen, and nobody will ever believe me.

DOCUMENT 5 — POLICE REPORT (COPY, FOUND IN THE BOX)

SEACLIFF CONSTABULARY — CASE SUMMARY

CASE No: 87/0412 DATE: 14 October 1987

SUBJECT: FROST, Margot — reported missing 23 Aug 1987

FINDINGS: Subject last seen 21:00 hrs, 22 Aug, by chambermaid R. Marsh (statement attached — NOTE: statement of R. Marsh judged fanciful, witness is a juvenile). Cardigan recovered Gull Point. Currents at said location severe. No body recovered. No note recovered.

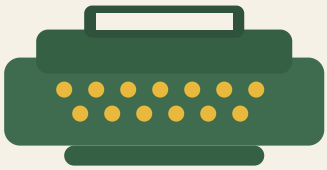

ITEMS UNACCOUNTED FOR: One (1) typewriter, green, Empire model. One (1) manuscript, incomplete, "THE SILVER TIDE". One (1) cat, black, answers (occasionally) to "Bram".

OBSERVATION OF SGT. HOWELL: Query — why should a drowning woman first post her trunk to an unknown address from the railway station? Luggage clerk recalls trunk "heavy as a church organ". Recommend further inquiry.

OBSERVATION OF INSPECTOR CRADDOCK: Sgt. Howell is reminded that the summer season ends Friday and the paperwork will not do itself. The sea has taken another, as the sea does.

CONCLUSION: Presumed accidental drowning.

CASE CLOSED

The famous green Empire typewriter — "heavy as a Christmas turkey." Never found.

PART THREE

The Investigation

DOCUMENT 6 — TEXT MESSAGES

Flo 🔎 & Delilah 🦕
Monday, 4:20 pm

FLO
I couldn't sleep. I read everything you photographed twice. Delilah, Grandma was RIGHT and the police were WRONG

DELILAH
because of the cat

DELILAH
you don't take your cat to a drowning. you take your cat to a NEW HOUSE

FLO
EXACTLY. The cat, the typewriter, the trunk. That's not a drowning, that's a MOVING DAY

FLO
Margot Frost faked it. She escaped from Gerald Pinch and his horrible contract and started a new life. "A person can be two people in one lifetime"

DELILAH
but why is her box in OUR loft 😵

FLO
Because she trusted one single person. A 17-year-old with cocoa. And that person grew up and became our grandma

DELILAH
"one day someone in your family will need it. they'll find it all by themselves" ……flo. THAT'S ME. I'M THE SOMEONE

FLO
You're the someone 🦕

DOCUMENT 6 — CONTINUED

Flo 🔎 & Delilah 🦕
Monday, 4:44 pm

FLO
But hang on. Why would anyone NEED it? Keeping it safe, fine. Needing it, that's different. There's something in that box we haven't understood yet

DELILAH
there's still the letters tied in string and one more newspaper. it's newer. 1989

FLO
Read the 1989 one next. And Delilah — "trust the postcards." Ask Dad if Grandma collects postcards

DELILAH
asked. dad says grandma has a biscuit tin she's weird about. she keeps it on top of the wardrobe and no one's allowed to touch it 👀

DOCUMENT 7 — NEWSPAPER CUTTING

The Seacliff Gazette

SATURDAY 15 JULY 1989 PRICE 26p

FROM HOTEL DESK TO BESTSELLER LIST: PINCH'S "SALT GRAVE" TRIUMPH

Seagull Hotel manager stuns literary world with debut mystery

Two summers after tragedy touched the Seagull Hotel, its manager Gerald Pinch has become an unlikely literary sensation. His first novel, The Salt Grave, sits atop the bestseller lists, and critics are astonished.

"It reads," wrote one reviewer, "as though Margot Frost herself wrote one last masterpiece. The same wit. The same tricks. Even her habit of hiding the vital clue in the luggage."

Mr Pinch, now living in a large house inland, said, mopping his brow: "In a way, her voice lives on through me. Whole chapters arrive as if already typed." He ended the interview abruptly when a reporter asked, in jest, whether he had ever learned to type.

DOCUMENT 8 — TEXT MESSAGES

Flo 🔎 & Delilah 🦕
Monday, 6:03 pm

FLO
“Whole chapters arrive as if already typed.” I BET THEY DO, GERALD

DELILAH
he stole her book?!

FLO
Think about it. Margot escapes with the typewriter and the finished pages. But she’d been at the Seagull ALL SUMMER writing. Writers make notes, plans, spare copies. Pinch ran the hotel. Master key. He kept whatever she left behind and published it as HIS

DELILAH
and she couldn’t tell on him!! because then everyone would know she wasn’t drowned!!

FLO
The perfect crime. The only victim who can’t complain is one everybody thinks is at the bottom of the sea

FLO
THAT’S why someone would need the box one day. It’s not a memory box Delilah. It’s EVIDENCE

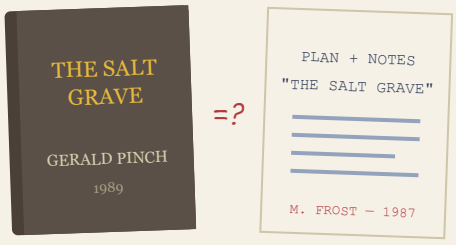

Exhibit K — the same story, two years apart, two different names.

DOCUMENT 9 — LETTER FOUND IN THE BOX, TIED IN STRING

Room 9, The Seagull Hotel
22nd August 1987

My dear Rosie,

If you are reading this properly — by which I mean years from now, with your heart thumping — then whoever found my box has done exactly what I hoped, and you may tell them from me: well done, detective.

By morning I shall be somebody else. Do not grieve, and do not believe the sea took me. The sea and I have an understanding: it doesn't write novels and I don't go paddling.

In this box are my eleven finished manuscripts — my life's murders, all of them harmless — and my diary of this last strange summer. They are the proof of how I write: my plans, my crossings-out, my tricks. A story's fingerprints, if you like. Should a certain gentleman ever pretend my words are his, this box will say otherwise, louder than I ever could.

Every summer, no matter where I am, I shall send you a postcard. No message — messages can be read — only a little drawing of Bram. While the postcards come, you will know we are well. The postmark will tell you where to find me, when finding me matters.

Be brave, dear girl. You were the only one who noticed things at that hotel. Noticing is the whole of it.

Your friend,
M.

DOCUMENT 10 — THE SUSPECT BOARD (MADE BY DELILAH, HELPED BY NOBODY)

WHO DID WHAT?? — an investigation

Gerald Pinch 😡

Hotel boss. Horrible contract. Said "half that book is mine." Suddenly writes amazing books when Margot is "gone". Can't even type??

VERDICT: BOOK THIEF. 100%

Margot Frost 🖋️

Not drowned!! Took cat + typewriter + trunk. Faked cardigan clue (folded = FAKE). Escaped to be a new person.

VERDICT: ALIVE. FIND HER.

Grandma Rosie 👵

Kept box safe 39 years like she promised. Told police the truth at 17. Got head-patted. STILL RIGHT.

VERDICT: HERO 🏅

Bram the cat 🐈‍⬛

Key witness. Liked 3 people: Margot, Rosie, nobody. Went with Margot = proof of moving day not drowning day.

VERDICT: GOOD BOY. INNOCENT.

DOCUMENT 11 — TEXT MESSAGES

Flo 🔎 & Delilah 🦕
Tuesday, 5:30 pm

FLO
Your suspect board is actually really good

DELILAH
I know

FLO
It's time. Saturday we show Grandma what we found. Both of us together

DELILAH
what if she's cross we opened it

FLO
"You'll know them because they'll find it all by themselves." We didn't break the rule Delilah. We ARE the rule

DOCUMENT 12 — THE NEW DIARY OF DELILAH, AGE 8 (STARTED SATURDAY)

Saturday

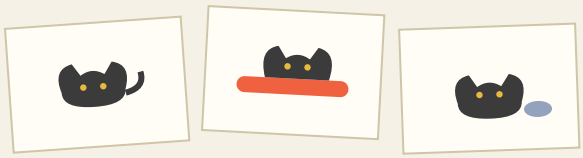

Flo says real detectives write everything down so this is my diary now. Grandma came for tea. We put the box on the kitchen table and Grandma went completely still, like when you pause a film. Then she touched the lid and said "Oh. It's you two, then. Of course it's you two." And she LAUGHED and CRIED at the SAME TIME which I didn't know grandmas could do.

Saturday, after sausages

Grandma got her biscuit tin down from the wardrobe. NO BISCUITS. Instead: THIRTY-EIGHT POSTCARDS. One every summer since 1988. No words on any of them, just a little drawing of a black cat. Sometimes the cat is on a deckchair. Sometimes eating a sardine. The cat drawings get a bit wobblier lately but Grandma says so does everyone.

Saturday, bedtime

Flo laid all the postcards on the floor in date order (she loves doing that kind of thing) and read out the postmarks. All different seaside towns. But the last SIX years are all the same place. A village called LITTLE WICK, 43 miles away. Flo went quiet and did her thinking face. Then she said: "The postmark tells you where to find me, when finding me matters." Grandma looked at the postcards for a long time. Then she said, "Girls. Fetch my road atlas." GRANDMA IS COMING WITH US. BEST DAY OF MY LIFE.

38 summers. 38 cats. Not one single word.

PART FOUR

Little Wick

DOCUMENT 13 — THE NEW DIARY OF DELILAH, AGE 8

Sunday

Dad drove us. Grandma sat in the front with the atlas open on her knees even though Dad has a phone with maps, because Grandma says satellites don't know everything. Little Wick has one shop, one lighthouse and about a MILLION seagulls. Flo said "how do we find one lady in a whole village" and Grandma said "we don't look for a lady. We look for a cat." See, this is why you bring a grandma.

We asked the shop man if there was a lady with a black cat and he laughed and said "You'll be wanting Miss Marsh at Driftwood Cottage. Cats, plural. And keep your sandwiches shut."

Flo grabbed my arm SO HARD. Miss MARSH. The lady is called MARSH. That's GRANDMA'S name. She borrowed grandma's name to be her new person!! Grandma had to sit down on the sea wall for a minute. She said, quiet, "Thirty-nine years, and she's been being ME."

Sunday, later, IMPORTANT

Driftwood Cottage is blue with hollyhocks. On the doorstep was a very old black cat eating a sardine. A voice from inside said, "If you're selling something, I have everything. If you're the two young detectives and Rosie Marsh, you took your time. Come in — the kettle's on."

SHE KNEW. HOW DID SHE KNOW?? (Flo says: the shop man phoned ahead. Villages are like that. I say: WITCH. We may never agree.)

Driftwood Cottage, Little Wick. Note the sardine.

DOCUMENT 14 — WRITTEN STATEMENT OF "MISS PEGGY MARSH" OF DRIFTWOOD COTTAGE

My name — my first name, the one I was born with and shall no doubt die with — is Margot Frost. I am eighty-seven years old, and I have been dead for thirty-nine of them. I recommend it. The queue at the post office treats you beautifully.

In 1987 I was the most famous mystery writer in England and the unhappiest woman in it. Gerald Pinch had trapped me with a wicked contract signed in a foolish moment, and he took half of everything I earned, and reminded me daily that he always would. I could not out-argue him. I could not out-lawyer him. But — and here I was fortunate — I could out-PLOT him. Plotting was my entire profession.

So I wrote my own vanishing. The folded cardigan (a clumsy clue, folded far too neatly — I hoped somebody would notice, and one dear girl did). The trunk sent ahead from the station. The typewriter in a hat box. Bram in a fish basket, bribed with sardines beyond counting. By Sunday morning Margot Frost was a tragedy, and Peggy Marsh — I borrowed the name of the only trustworthy person I knew — was a plain woman on a bus with a heavy amount of luggage. Nobody watches the luggage.

Then Gerald published my stolen notes as his own, exactly as I feared he might, and I could say nothing — for the dead make poor witnesses. That is why the box exists. Eleven manuscripts and a diary: my fingerprints, waiting in a loft for someone with sharp eyes and no fear of dust.

It seems the wait is over. Rosie — you kept your promise for thirty-nine years, which is thirty-eight more than most people manage. And your granddaughters found it all by themselves, exactly as foretold. The little one, I am told, suspected the cat evidence at once. She will go far.

Signed, in my own unmistakable hand,

MARGOT FROST

(dictated to no one, typed by nobody, entirely alive)

DOCUMENT 15 — EMAIL

NEW MESSAGE

From: Flo <flo.detective.agency@mailmail.com>
To: The Editor, The Seacliff Gazette; Hartwell & Blyth Publishers Ltd
Subject: Margot Frost is alive, and we can prove Gerald Pinch stole “The Salt Grave”

Dear Editor and Publishers,

We are Flo (12) and Delilah (8). Thirty-nine years ago you reported that the writer Margot Frost drowned at Gull Point. She didn’t. We have found her, and she has given us permission to tell you everything.

Attached you will find: (1) photographs of eleven original manuscripts in Margot Frost’s own typing, kept sealed in a box since 1987; (2) her 1987 diary and planning notes, which contain the entire plot of “The Salt Grave” — two years before Gerald Pinch “wrote” it; (3) a signed statement from Miss Frost; (4) a drawing of the cat by my sister (not evidence, but it is very good).

Our grandma Rosie Marsh told the police the truth in 1987 and was patted on the head. We would like it officially recorded that she was right about everything.

Yours faithfully,
Flo & Delilah
(and Rosie Marsh, and Margot Frost, and Bram IV)

DOCUMENT 16 — TEXT MESSAGES

Flo 🔎 & Delilah 🦕
Three weeks later, 7:40 am

DELILAH
FLO. DAD SAYS WE'RE IN THE PAPER. THE ACTUAL PAPER. HE BOUGHT NINE COPIES

FLO
Mum bought ELEVEN. she’s laminating one

DELILAH
read it to me!! I'm not allowed the scissors yet and grandma is guarding hers

DOCUMENT 17 — NEWSPAPER CUTTING (LAMINATED BY MUM)

The Seacliff Gazette

SATURDAY 26 SEPTEMBER 2026 PRICE £1.60

“DEAD” FOR 39 YEARS — QUEEN OF MYSTERY FOUND ALIVE BY SISTERS, 12 & 8

Case reopened as experts confirm Pinch’s bestseller was Frost’s stolen work — “The cat was the clue,” says younger detective

The mystery writer Margot Frost, presumed drowned at Gull Point in August 1987, is alive and, in her own words, “extremely well, thank you, and owed a great deal of royalties.” The astonishing discovery was made by two sisters, Florence, 12, and Delilah, 8, who found a sealed box of evidence in their family loft.

Document experts this week confirmed that The Salt Grave, the 1989 bestseller published by former hotel manager Gerald Pinch, 90, was composed from Miss Frost’s stolen notes. Mr Pinch, confronted with eleven manuscripts and a diary, is reported to have said only: “Thirty-nine years. I was undone by an eight-year-old and a cat.”

Miss Frost paid particular tribute to Rosie Marsh, 56, who was dismissed as “fanciful” by police in 1987. Inspector J. Okafor of Seacliff CID said this week: “The record now shows that Miss Marsh, then aged 17, out-detected the entire 1987 Seacliff Constabulary. We have sent flowers.”

Miss Frost’s twelfth novel, The Silver Tide — begun at the Seagull Hotel and finished “thirty-nine years late, which for a writer is practically on time” — will be published next spring, under her real name.

DOCUMENT 18 — INVITATION (KEPT BY EVERYONE)

HARTWELL & BLYTH PUBLISHERS
REQUEST THE PLEASURE OF YOUR COMPANY

at the launch of THE SILVER TIDE

by MARGOT FROST

her first new book for thirty-nine years

The author will be introduced by her three favourite detectives:

ROSIE MARSH, FLORENCE & DELILAH

The dedication page reads:

"For Rosie, who kept the box. And for Flo and Delilah, who opened it."

DOCUMENT 19 — TEXT MESSAGES (THE LAST ONES IN THE FILE)

Flo 🔎 & Delilah 🦕
The night after the book launch, 9:58 pm

FLO
You awake?

DELILAH
no

DELILAH
mum and dad sat NEXT TO EACH OTHER tonight and shared the crisps and nobody argued even once

FLO
I noticed. Margot says noticing is the whole of it

DELILAH
Margot said I can have a kitten from Bram the Fourth's family. I'm calling it Sardine

DELILAH
flo

FLO
what

DELILAH
I liked being detectives with you. even though you live at mum's and I live at dad's. the mystery didn't care whose house we were at

FLO
Best thing about a case file, Delilah. It fits down a phone line. We were never actually apart for one minute of it

DELILAH
so what do we do now it's over 🦕❤️🔎

FLO
Now? Now you check MUM'S loft

DELILAH
😱😱😱

THE END

Every mystery has three things:
a secret, a lie, and a person brave enough to notice the difference.

This book was made for two real detectives.
Keep noticing things.